Research and Teaching Interests

- I am an ethnographer whose research reflects my interdisciplinary training in Sociocultural Anthropology, Gender Studies, and American Studies. My diverse and interconnected professional interests include: cultural competence in health care, reproduction and reproductive technologies, poverty, social change and development, educational policies and practices, and environmental sustainability. As a complement to my teaching and research, I maintain active involvement with non-profit entities and community-based organizations, both in the U.S. and in Central America.
